After the organization of the meeting, and the unanimous acceptance of its call, Edward Strahan, early, introduced, in behalf of the committee, the following resolutions:

The Democratic Republican Young Men of the City and County of New York, in general meeting assembled, do pass the following meeting assembled, do pass the following in the evident and improving healthfulness of the mind and tone of the republican party, not only in this city and State, but in all parts of the Union. That the doctrines of progress are accelerating every passing day, and are becoming more and more independent of the influence of extraordinary individuals. That prejudices, old and antiquated, are now fearlessly grappled with—old errors are now manfully met and challenged—and old abuses, which have grown up with our growth and strengthened with our strength, are now soughts out and exposed to the public gaze. That unlike times and occasions which have proceeded this, when leaders assumed independent on leaders, we give joy at the present condition of things, in which the democracy, while standing closely and firmly by the usages and disappline of their paricy organization, refuse to fellow where the lead is wrong, and themselves lead on to the onsummation to the ascendency of our party and its principles, we will direct our efforts a pletting down the barriers and raising the floodington where the lead is wrong, and themselves lead on to the term of their paricy organization, refuse to fellow where the lead is wrong, and themselves lead on to the term of the full interest or of their paricy organization, refuse to fellow where the lead is wrong, and themselves lead on to the term of the full interest or of the property in the property of the property of the property of the prope

ry from the Russian possessions on the north to the Mexican possessions on the south, or as to the manner in which that claim should be asserted, we have no shade or shadow of antagonist opinion; that the irrefragable facts and arguments which have been presented to the American people by Messrs. Calhoun and Buchanan, our enlightened and patriotic Secretaries of State, in the correspondence recently published, make our right and claim to the latitude fifty-four degrees forty minutes so unquestionable, that to negotiate, compromise, or recode, would be to detract from our national dignity and character. That although citizens of the great commercial emporium of the Western World—with interests which are best advanced by peace—dependent, in a material extent, upon quiet and unrestricted commerce with the whole world—we prefer making any sacrifice rather than have tarnished, in the least possible degree, the good name of our national confederacy; and that we are sternly of opinion that the Congress of the United States should give immediate notice to the British government of our intention to put an end to the joint occupation of Oregon, and to throw around and over our fellow-citizens there the protection of our laws.

6. That the tariff of 1842 is an odious and oppressive law—its passage was uncalled for by any public necessity—it was draughted with a selfah, local, mercenary, and monopolizing end—it was passed, and became of record on our statute book, in volation of public and private rights, and in dereliction of the principles of our political creed. That we ask its material modification upon the settled principle of the republican party, that a tariff properly arranged should impose the lower rate of duty on articles of foreign import that will raise the required amount of revenue, be it much or little. That we repudiate the whole doctrines of protection, as urged by the lordly manufacturers of the East, who, while claiming "protection" from the government, and drawing thereby into their own pockets the tax moneys of the government in banks is the root or all our financial evils, the chief source of most of the losses of the public treasury, and a fountain of perpetual mischief. That it dissipates the public money through all the channels of trade, business, and every kind of speculation, and makes the greature wrung from the hard hand of labor for the purposes of government the seourge of oppression. That the constitution requires there should be a public treasury that the money should be kept there—that an account should be taken and published from time to time—and that no money should be drawn therefrom without an appropriation made by law. That any other way of keeping it is in violation of every one of these salutary provisions. That, therefore, we recommend the establishment of a constitutional treasury, as recommended by President Polk, for the purposes of the general government, and urge upon the same ground of policy and security, the establishment of 'an independent treasury' for the State.

warning to those who would subvert the met warning to those who would subvert the institutions of the country, and change this from a land of liberty to a land of persecution.

16. That with the feelings, sentiments, views, measures, and principles expressed in the foregoing resolutions unfettered by the chair s of man-worship—disregarding all sectional jealousies—having no interest in the quarrels of would-be leaders—determined to sustain the honor ard integrity of the republic—desiring the happiness and prosperity of the whole country, and loving our principle a with all the affection and since; ity of carnest men, we have nailed our colors to the mast, and they shall never be lowered to an enemy.

The resolutions were listened to with the pro-also that in relation to Texas. But when that portion in relation to Oregon was read, the cheering was positively desfening, and lasted several minutes.

Mr. Buchanan's name was mentioned in relation to his admirable and unanswerable argument in favor of our right to the whole of Oregon; it was received with a warmth which told how sensibly the vast audience appreciated his abilities and confided in his wisdom.

The one al'uding to the tariff was also received

The meeting was successively addressed by Messrs. Brady, John W. Forney, of Philadelphia, J. S. Bos-worth, Shepard, and L. S. Eddy; when the question was put upon the resolutions, and they were unani-

Broom's Legal Maxims, and many other very altoom's Legal Maxims, and many other very Dec. 6 AT TAMMANY HALL.

The load voice of the democratic republican young men of the city and county of Niw York—their opinions of progressive democracy—of the message of James K. Polk—of the Taxs and Oregon questions—of the tariff, and a constitutional treasury for the national and State governments—of our national defences—of negro suffrage and constitutional and city reform.

We need make no comment on the proceedings of the great meeting held last evening, at Tammany Hall. They speak for themselves. The resolutions contain a full and explicit view of the popular feeling in this city, and we make bold to say, of the State and the Union. The speeches—of which we give as full report as could be done under the circumstances—were masterly beyond former occasions. One thing we must remark—the meeting last night was composed of the very life and easence of the New York democracy, and their expression on measures, and their action on them, is the certain indication of a triumphant consummation. But we have not time for further remark. We give our report of the proceedings.

The meeting was called to order by Lorenzo B.

Lorenzo B. Shepard, Michael Phelan, Lathrop S. Eddy, Bryan McCahill, David R. Floyd Jones, James McCullough, John R. Colon, Andrew R. Jackman, John S. Ellison, Timothy Daly,

John Calgan, Abraham B. Davis, J. L. H. McGracken Theo. M. Dougherty, Wm. McMurray,

Levi D. Slamm, John S. Gilbert, Henry Arcularius, ji Matthew L. Smith, Moses E. Flanagan, James Dunn, Thos. K. Downing, Wm. B. Aitken David C. Broderick, B. T. Gilmore,

doubts which artifice and cowardice have studiously attempted to throw around the man, whom the people nominated from among themselves and elected to the highest office in their gift, and confirmed beyond peradventure the strong assurances we before entertained, that the principles upon which he was sustained by the democracy of the Union will remain not only unbroken, but that his aim will be to implant them deeper and deeper in the affections of the nation. That the nomination and election of our present Chief Magistrate was a moral triumph, the grandeur of which is more sensibly felt and appreciated, and obtains increased lustre, when we hold up his first State paper and see reflected from it the principles of progressive democracy and the sentiment of the whole people, unalloyed by timid phrase of ambiguous expression. That we tender to the President of the United States, the pledge of our determination to sustain with energy and enthusiasm the enlightened and national policy he has laid down as the direction of his administration.

3. That we are opposed to the use of the public money for private purposes. That the public money is a sacred deposit, and should be consecrated exclusively to the great constitutional purposes for which it was raised. That the practice of depositing the moneys of the government in banks is the root of all our financial evils, the chief source of most of the losses of the public treasury, and a fountain of perpetual mischief. That it dissipates the public money through all the channels of trade, business, and the legislature to confer on boards of supervisors lengthen and many the distinction and mendment allowing the legislature to confer on boards of supervisors lengthen and an amendment allowing the legislature to confer on boards of supervisors lengthen and an election for the constitution an amendment allowing the legislature to confer on boards of supervisors lengthen and an election and the legislature to confer on boards of supervisors lengthen and an election and the le recommend the establishment of a constitutional treasury, as recommended by President Polk, for the purposes of the general government, and urge upon the same ground of policy and security, the establishment of 'an independent treasury' for the State.

4. That, in the final consummation of the great for the measure of the annexation of Texas, by its admission as a State into our confederacy, we behold one of the mighty results of the election of James K. Polk; that, in the language of the measure, "in contemplating the grandeur of this event, it is not to be forgotten that the result was achieved in despite of the diplomatic interference of European monarche ies;" that "we may rejoice that the tranquil and pervaluant of the interference of European monarche ies;" that "we may rejoice that the tranquil and pervaluant of the interference of European monarche ies;" that "we may rejoice that the tranquil and pervaluant of the interference of European governments may learn how vain diplomatic arts and intrigues must ever prove, upon this continent, against that system of self-government which seems natural to our soil, and which will ever resist foreign interference;" and that the democratic republican young men of this city-look back upon their early support of this great question of empire, their carnest and pertinacious and unyielding support of it as thegreat its issue in the last presidential campaign, unintimidated by the threats of open enemies and factious friends, and can hail, therefore, with confidence and fullness of heart, the State of Texas—a sister in our brilliant againaxy.
